

The 7N Community

As a 7N consultant, you will become part of a strong community of the most talented freelance IT consultants. Not only that; you will find that 7N is a competent sparring partner during your day-to-day work at the client, during our frequent meetings, and during our many professional and social events.

Below, we've provided you with a glimpse into your life as a 7N consultant.

Your life cycle as a consultant

You'll soon discover that you are our main point of focus – both before, during, and after you are working on an assignment. Before an assignment, we put a great deal of effort into preparing you thoroughly. Not only do we ensure that you and the assignment are a good match, but we also make sure that your CV, interview, and first meeting with the client run smoothly.

When you are working on an assignment, our sales agents have frequent meetings with both you and the client to ensure that both parties are satisfied with the collaboration, that your expertise is being used optimally, and that any problems that may have arisen are dealt with promptly.

Towards the end of your contract (1-2 months before it expires), we initiate a dialogue with you to make sure that you are properly prepared for your next assignment.

Professional events

Your professional development is essential if you are to remain attractive as a consultant. That is why we constantly keep a pulse on market trends.

We conduct several webinars, workshops, lectures, and courses throughout the year, to which we invite talented professionals to teach and present a range of topics. 7N supports your professional development via high-quality events, networks, and courses. We aim to tailor all of our events to your specific needs. We only invite 7N consultants, which means that the teaching level or topic is tailored to a professional audience.

All presentations and workshops are free as a rule, with the exception of courses and certifications, which do require the participants pay a share of the costs.

Social Events

Freelance consultants often find it difficult to build a professional and social network, which is why 7N hosts several social events throughout the year.

These events also provide a unique opportunity to network with other 7N colleagues and give us, the employees, a chance to get to know you better.

During the course of the year, we will invite you to evening lectures or webinars on everything from reading techniques to healthy diets, previews of new movies, and outdoor trips – for example, mountain biking, and ending the day with a cozy get-together over a meal.
